LESSON 1: Introduction to Project Soapbox

Overview:
The purpose of this lesson is for students to identify qualities of a good speech and explore an issue that matters to them.

NOTE: Project Soapbox was created to be able to stand alone as a one-week public speaking curriculum. Many teachers prefer to spend two weeks so that they can give students ample time to develop, refine, and practice their speeches.

BELL-RINGER: What’s a soapbox? (5 minutes)

Project the Soapbox Image on an overhead LCD projector and have students answer the three questions in their journals.

BEFORE: Introduction to the week (5–10 minutes)

Review questions from the bell-ringer, pointing out that the speaker is impassioned and getting some response from members of the crowd. Explain that soapbox speeches have been made since the late 19th century and provide a working definition of soapbox as:

SOAPBOX: A raised platform on which one stands to make an impromptu speech, often about a political subject

Explain that in this unit, students will each write a speech to answer the question, “What is the most important issue facing your community?” Students will learn how to develop and deliver this speech and then present their speeches to judges at the end of the unit in a competition. Explain that the objective is for students to improve their public speaking, an important academic and activist skill.
LESSON 1: Introduction to Project Soapbox

DURING: What makes a great speech? (15 minutes)

Ask students to brainstorm what makes a great speech and what makes a bad speech and chart answers on a T-chart on the board. Transition from the qualities identified by students to the qualities of a good speech as identified on the Project Soapbox Speech Rubric. Distribute a rubric to each student and very quickly run through the main ideas.

Distribute the Evaluating Speeches: Identifying the Qualities of a Good Speech worksheet and explain to students that they will use the qualities discussed in class and those on the rubric to help evaluate if a speech is good or bad and why. Play a few excerpts of speeches from the Internet. We recommend using examples of good and bad speeches (but not telling students ahead of time). Here are a few recommended speeches you can choose from (or use others):

Examples of poor speeches:

- Phil Davison’s speech for Stark County Treasurer in Ohio is aggressive and angry. (https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ORfbBCYQm-4)
- The assignment for speech class was to give a bad speech. This young man does his best to deliver a pretty bad speech. (www.youtube.com/watch?v=bTKuyk5A7wQ)

Examples of good speeches:

- Mikva Challenge Project Soapbox finalists (www.mikvachallenge.org/educators/online-resources/issues)
- Erica Williams—young speaker representing Campus Progress at 2009 State of the Black Union Conference (https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ojO-4zvULaM Start one minute into the clip.)

AFTER: Instant speech challenge (15 minutes)

Explain that part of making good speeches is speaking confidently. Explain to students that confidence can be gained through practice. In order to kick off the practice, have students participate in an instant speech challenge. Have students select an Instant Speech Topics card and make a 30–60 second speech on the topic they select. You should model this for them by randomly selecting a card and giving an impromptu speech.

NOTE: You may also choose to pick 3 or 4 students each day over the next few days to do the instant speech challenge (randomly pick their names from a hat) to break it up.
LESSON 1: Introduction to Project Soapbox

CLOSER: Explain homework (3 minutes)

Remind students that what helps someone give a good speech is when they care about the topic. Explain to students that now it is their turn to think about something that they really care about for the topic of their soapbox speech.

NOTE: If you have time and would like students to engage in in-depth research before choosing an issue, see the Issue Selection Exploration on page 268 in the Appendix.

DIGITAL TOOLS

The digital tools below can be used throughout Project Soapbox:

American Rhetoric – http://americanrhetoric.com
This website includes a database of and index to 5000+ full text, audio, and video versions of public speeches, sermons, legal proceedings, lectures, debates, interviews, other recorded media events.

This site provides public speaking tips and techniques.

Top 10 Greatest Speeches – http://content.time.com/time/specials/packages/article/0,28804,1841228_1841749_1841736,00.html
Time magazine provides the full text and the “best line” of ten notable speeches in history.

Writing Commons – http://writingcommons.org/open-text/genres/public-speaking
The Writing Commons is a free, global, peer-reviewed, open-education resource that describes the many aspects of writing and delivering an effective speech including audience analysis, the importance of listening, finding a purpose, selecting a topic, writing the speech, the importance of language, and delivering the speech.

55 Speeches by Influential People of the 21st Century – http://trendhunter.com/course/influential-people
This collection of speeches by influential people spotlights a number of individuals who have impacted society, specifically during the 21st century.

One of the best ways to improve your students’ public speaking ability is to film them (or have them film each other) giving their speeches. Have your students watch themselves and use the Project Soapbox Speech Rubric (page 72) to evaluate their speeches.
Soapbox Image

1. What is happening in this image? Write at least three actions you see taking place.

2. What's the mood of the people in the image? How do you know this?

3. Why do you think the man is standing on a ladder?
Student Handout: Project Soapbox Speech Rubric

Circle the descriptor in each row that best describes the student’s speech performance.

Student Handout: Soapbox Day 1 Homework

1. What are you most proud of in your school/community/city/society?

2. What do you wish you could change in your school/community/city/society?

3. Based on your answers to questions 1 and 2, name an issue that is very important to you and explain why it is important to you.

4. Who else is affected by this issue? How?

5. Why should other people care about this issue?

6. Describe what your school or community could be like if people took action on this issue.
LESSON 2: Structuring a Speech

Overview:
The purpose of this lesson is for students to structure their speeches around defining a problem and issuing a call to action.

Student Objectives:
- Write a rough draft of a speech
- Practice speech with peers
- Identify and explain problems and calls to action in speeches

Materials:
- Speech text
- Examining the Structure of a Speech
- Optional: computer with Internet, speakers, and LCD projector
- Project Soapbox Rough Draft Guide
- Persuasive appeals

Assessment:
- Rough draft of speech

Common Core State Standard

CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.W.11-12.1
Write arguments to support claims in an analysis of substantive topics or texts, using valid reasoning and relevant and sufficient evidence.

BEFORE CLASS BEGINS

Prepare by printing an excerpt from one (or more) of the following speeches (you may choose to play the speech and have students read along, or to just have them read the text since they are focusing on the structure of the speech, not the delivery). The speeches below provide good examples for students of how to structure their speeches using the problem—evidence—call to action structure:

- Mary Fisher speaking at the RNC Convention in 1992 and calling on Americans to open their minds on the topic of AIDS (text and audio):

- Shirley Chisholm, speaking in Congress in 1970 about the problem of sex discrimination in America and on behalf of the Equal Rights Amendment (text only):
  www.americanrhetoric.com/speeches/shirleychisholmequalrights.htm

- Harvey Milk’s “Hope” speech discusses the need to fight against the anti-gay movement with strength and hope (text only):
  www.danaroc.com/guests_harveymilk_122208.html

- RFK in 1968, speaking on the death of MLK, asking Americans to respond to the death with love, wisdom, and compassion (text and excerpted video):
  www.americanrhetoric.com/speeches/rfkonmlkdeath.html

- Hillary Clinton speaking in Beijing on women’s rights globally (text and video):
  www.americanrhetoric.com/speeches/hillaryclintonbeijingspeech.htm

- George Bush’s 9/11 Address to the Nation (text and video):
  www.americanrhetoric.com/speeches/gwbush911addresstothenation.htm

- Arnold Schwarzenegger’s Address to the United Nations on Global Climate Change (text and video):
  http://www.americanrhetoric.com/speeches/arnoldschwarzeneggerunitednations.htm
LESSON 2: Structuring a Speech

BELL-RINGER: Examining the structure of a speech (5 minutes)

Provide students the text for one of the speeches above. Have them read silently and complete the Examining Speech Structure handout.

BEFORE: Structuring a soapbox speech (10 minutes)

Discuss the bell-ringer. Explain that the body of their soapbox speech is going to use the same frame as the speech from the bell-ringer. They must consider their audience and:

1. Define the problem
2. Explain why this is a problem (use supporting evidence)
3. Explain what assets your school/community has that people could use to address this issue (what gives you hope?)
4. Issue a call to action (What do you want your audience to do?)

Explain that the goal of the speech is to persuade the audience to support their issue. Introduce the word rhetoric.

RHETORIC: the art of speaking or writing effectively

Distribute persuasive appeals handout and read aloud. Explain to students that as they begin to format and structure their speeches, they need to consider what they will do to persuade the audience to support their issue.

DURING: Preparing a rough draft (20–30 minutes)

Students should write a rough draft of the body of their speech using the Project Soapbox Rough Draft Guide. Have students use their homework as a jumping off point for their rough drafts. Speeches should be one to two minutes long.
LESSON 2: Structuring a Speech

AFTER: Peer feedback (10 minutes)

Divide students into pairs. Have each student read their speech to their partner while the partner writes down:

• The problem
• The explanation of the problem
• The assets that could be used to address it
• The call to action

Partners then share their notes with the speech giver and check for accuracy and understanding. If a section of the speech seems to be missing or underdeveloped, students should explain this to their partner.

CLOSER: Explain homework (3 minutes)

Students should finish/revise their rough drafts. Explain that they will have to do some research to find supporting evidence for their arguments.
Student Handout: Examining Speech Structure

1. What problem does the speaker identify?

2. What is the evidence that there is a problem?

3. Who do you think the audience is?

4. What assets does the speaker identify that could be used to address this issue?

5. What does the speaker want the audience to do?
Student Handout: Persuasive Appeals

A good speech usually appeals to the audience’s intellect (head) or their emotions (heart) through:

Logical appeals—appeal to the audience to use reason and analysis

Example: Using statistics and facts

OR

Emotional appeal—appeal to the audience’s deep emotions

Example: Using a personal story

Remember your audience: You will be delivering your speech to your classmates and teachers, but you never know who might be listening to your speech. Your principal, your alderman, or a guest might be present at the speech competition.

Write ideas for possible logical appeals you could use.

Write ideas for possible emotional appeals you could use.

LESSON 3: Spicing Up a Speech

Overview:
This lesson introduces various rhetorical devices for students to employ as they develop their speeches.

Student Objectives:
• Write an attention grabber and a closer
• Listen to speeches and evaluate rhetorical devices
• Apply one or more rhetorical devices in their own speech writing

Materials:
• LCD projector, computer with Internet, and speakers
• Attention Grabbers/Closers handout
• Rhetorical Devices table
• Rhetorical Devices overhead
• Overhead projector

Assessment:
• Attention Grabber/Closer handout

Common Core State Standards
CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.W.11-12.2.D
Use precise language, domain-specific vocabulary, and techniques such as metaphor, simile, and analogy to manage the complexity of the topic.

BELL-RINGER: Journal entry (5 minutes)
Students respond in their journals to the following questions: “What catches your attention at the beginning of a speech? How should a good speech end? After a good speech, how should the audience feel?”

BEFORE: Attention grabber/closers (5–10 minutes)
Have a few students share from their bell-ringer. Ask the class how it would sound if a speech started with “In this speech I will explain to you why drugs are a big problem in our community and why you should stop this problem.” Students should recognize that an opener like that would be very boring. Then ask them how it would sound if a speech ended with “And those are the problems with drugs. I’m done.” Again, they should recognize that a closer like that would not be effective. Distribute the Attention Grabbers/Closers handout and read together. Have students jot down notes for their own speeches.
LESSON 3: Spicing Up a Speech

DURING: Using rhetorical devices (30–35 minutes)

Explain that today we will examine the ways to spice up a speech with tricks of the trade. Those tricks are called rhetorical devices.

RHETORICAL DEVICE: strategies used to get a particular response from an audience

Have students think about what types of emotions they might want to tap into—anger? fear? excitement? hope?

Distribute the Rhetorical Devices table and read aloud together. Encourage students to think of their own examples. Remind students that today’s lesson is focused on how a speech is written, not how it is delivered. Distribute the Great Speeches: Rhetorical Devices and Appeal handout. Have students read and/or listen to one of the speeches below and complete the handout.

- Barack Obama’s “Yes We Can” speech, New Hampshire
  www.youtube.com/watch?v=Fe751kMBwms repetition, imagery

- Martin Luther King, Jr.’s “I’ve Been to the Mountaintop” www.americanrhetoric.com/speeches/mlkivebeentothemountaintop.htm
  metaphors, repetition, imagery, hyperbole

- Ronald Reagan’s “Evil Empire” speech
  www.americanrhetoric.com/speeches/ronaldreaganevilempire.htm
  storytelling, appeal to values, imagery

AFTER: Using rhetorical devices in your speech (5 minutes and homework)

Have students go back to their rough drafts and add rhetorical devices to their speeches, and continue for homework. They should pay specific attention to writing a good attention grabber to open their speeches and a compelling closer.
Student Handout: Attention Grabbers/Closers

ATTENTION GRABBER
A good speech grabs the audience’s attention right at the very beginning. There are a number of ways you can do that:

- Use a quote (e.g., As Gene Tunney said, “Excercise should be regarded as tribute to the heart.”)
- Make a strong statement (e.g., Our schools are failing young people.)
- Use a statistic (e.g., 80% of students report being bullied.)
- Tell a story (e.g., I will never forget the day my grandmother died of cancer.)
- Ask a rhetorical question that relates to your topic (e.g., Have you ever felt so scared and unsafe that you would not get out of bed?)
- Pose a hypothetical situation (e.g., Imagine being sent to a country where you don’t speak the language or know a single person.)

Think about an original and interesting attention grabber that would work well with your speech and describe it below.

CLOSER
The last thing you say to your audience should stick with them. That is why a good closer is so important. Some powerful ways to end a speech are:

- Summarize the main speech topics or main points
- Refer back to your opener
- Call them to act and offer them how-to-do-it steps (e.g., If everyone in this room called their congressperson...)
- Visualize the outcome of your call to action (e.g., Imagine a world where...)
- Transform your central idea into an easy to remember slogan (e.g., The more we share, the more we care.)
- Finish with a clinching personal anecdote (e.g., My neighbor told me of a time...)
- Provide a statistic or fact (e.g., 100 more teens will try to commit suicide by tomorrow...)

Think about how you can end your speech to leave a lasting impression on your audience and write it below.
Rhetorical Devices

Below are some common devices used by speech writers in their appeals:

<table>

LESSON 4: Delivering a Great Speech

Overview:
This lesson focuses on speech delivery. Students practice their speeches with their peers and examine the rubric before they go home to practice one last time.

Student Objectives:
• Assess themselves using the Presentation Rubric
• Read through Presentation Guidelines
• Practice their speeches
• Give and receive feedback

Materials:
• Presentation Guidelines
• Public Speaking Rubric
• Peer Feedback sheets

Assessments:
• Peer feedback and reflection

Common Core State Standards
CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.SL.11-12.4
Present information, findings, and supporting evidence, conveying a clear and distinct perspective, such that listeners can follow the line of reasoning, alternative or opposing perspectives are addressed, and the organization, development, substance, and style are appropriate to purpose, audience, and a range of formal and informal tasks.

BELLS-RINGER: Rubric review (5 minutes)

Have students read the Presentation Guidelines and Public Speaking Rubric. As they read, they should re-read their speeches, looking specifically at the Content and Rhetorical Devices rows on the rubric, and self-assess their speech.

BEFORE: Persuasive ABCs (15–20 minutes)

Explain to the class that so far this week they have learned how to structure their speech and how to appeal to their audience. Today will focus on presentation. Read the “Meets Standard” descriptors for the category of “Delivery” on the rubric. Ask students: what might a well-delivered speech sound and look like?

Create a list on the board entitled “Good Speech Delivery” and list the student responses. Be sure to include: dramatic pauses, raised volume, dramatic body language (e.g., arm gestures, facial expressions). After each suggestion, ask a student to demonstrate what that might look like, using the ABCs as your text (e.g. a student can recite the ABCs, beginning at a normal volume and then raise the volume for letters D–G to demonstrate the importance of that part of the “speech”). You may have to model for students first.

Solicit student volunteers to recite the ABCs as expressively and persuasively as they can, using as many of the qualities listed under “Good Speech Delivery” as they can. Alternatively, you can have students turn to the person next to them and each practice reciting the ABCs persuasively to one another.
LESSON 4: Delivering a Great Speech

DURING: Peer feedback (20 minutes)

Explain to the students that this is their day to practice their speeches before the competition and receive constructive criticism. Spend a few minutes establishing expectations and guidelines for feedback (some suggestions: be honest, no insults, save comments until the end).

Divide students into pairs or groups of three.

NOTE: This is an excellent opportunity for students that have not completed the homework to prepare a speech. You can move those students to one area of the room and allow other students to spread out...even in the hall if possible.)

In the groups, each student should read their speech and then receive feedback from their peers using the Peer Feedback forms. If time permits, they can practice their speeches more than once.

ENRICHMENT

You can extend this lesson by watching examples of different well-delivered speeches and having students focus on the delivery of the speech. Some suggestions for well-delivered speeches include:

- Sarah Palin’s 2008 Republican Convention Speech
- Malcolm X “Who Taught You to Hate Yourself?” speech www.youtube.com/watch?v=gRSgUTWffMQ&feature=related
- Michelle Obama’s 2008 Democratic Convention Speech
  www.youtube.com/watch?v=sTFsB09KhqI
- Bill Clinton’s 2004 Address to the DNC
- Marco Rubio’s Is America Still An Exceptional Nation? speech

AFTER: Reflection (5 minutes)

Ask students what is the hardest part about delivering a speech? Offer suggestions and solicit ideas from students on how to address those challenges.

CLOSER: Exit ticket (2 minutes)

Have students write two things they will do tonight to prepare for the competition tomorrow.
Presentation Guidelines

Public speaking is crucial to civic action and the struggle for social justice. Whether you are running a meeting or persuading someone to agree with your plan of action, your ability to communicate is vital if you want people to listen to you and to accomplish your goals.

General presentation rules:

• Dress professionally. It adds authority to your presentation and shows that you take this seriously. Remember: dressing up for a presentation is different than dressing up to go out to a club.

• Never chew gum or have anything in your mouth.

• Present yourself professionally. Use appropriate language.

• Have a purpose. Why should the audience listen to you?

• Do your research and know what you are talking about.

• Be confident! Practice, practice, practice and you’ll feel ready to go.

• Be yourself. Even strangers can recognize someone who is fake or insincere. (Don’t feel the need to be loud if you are a soft-spoken person. There are lots of effective ways to speak.)

• Don’t freak out if you stumble. Nobody but you knows how your speech is “supposed” to go so just roll with it. Don’t say “Wait, can I start over?” or “Oops.”

• First impressions are powerful. Your presentation starts before you begin speaking. Once you are announced, you are on. That means the way you approach the podium and prepare yourself is all part of your presentation!

Components of a presentation:

• Content: Think about the content of your presentation. What are you trying to say? Are your ideas and purpose clear? Do you have enough credible evidence to support what you’re saying? Do you offer the audience a call to action? Do you appeal to a universal value? Is your topic important?

• Rhetorical Devices and Appeal to Audience: Just because you care about your issue does not mean your audience does. Your job is to get them to care. How does your speech connect your audience to your issue? What rhetorical devices do you use to make that connection? Does your opener grab your audience’s attention? Does your closer leave them thinking about your issue?

• Delivery: How do you look when you speak? Are your hands fidgeting? Is your foot wiggling? Is all your weight on one leg? Are your eyes glued to the floor? If you want your audience to be interested and have confidence in you, first you need to look interested and confident! If you are not passionate about your cause, why should anyone else be? Your tone can be serious and solemn or bold and impassioned (depending on the topic of your speech) but it MUST be evident that you care about the topic. You should speak naturally, not simply read a speech.

BEFORE CLASS BEGINS

Consider inviting people from your school staff, parents, and community members to be judges. Consider bringing in decision makers like the principal and local officials so your students can begin to build a relationship with them. Use the rubric to determine the winner.

NOTE: When presenting Project Soapbox speeches about the issues they find most important, students may sometimes include narratives of personal trauma (e.g., abuse, serious depression, etc.) that demand further attention. It is a testament to the trust and safety of your classroom that a student would feel comfortable to share such painful personal experiences. We recommend responding by thanking the student for sharing on such a deeply important issue, recognizing that others may have had similar experiences and they are giving voice to this important issue. We would also thank the class for being a respectful and supportive group in which students feel comfortable sharing. We further recommend that you follow up with the student outside of class and refer them to any appropriate resources available in school and in the community. We have a list of resources in the Appendix and at www.mikvachallenge.org/educators/online-resources/issues/. As a mandated reporter, you may also have to report if the student shared examples of current abuse.
LESSON 5: The Speech Competition

BELL-RINGER: Preparation (2 minutes)

Students should take out all necessary materials and be ready to present. They can silently practice their speeches.

BEFORE: Speech procedure (5 minutes)

Welcome and introduce the judges. Set up the expectations for the day by explaining that all speeches should receive wild applause when they are completed. (Have them practice giving wild applause, which is when everyone cheers loudly and enthusiastically.) Emphasize that no one should be interrupted. As they listen, students should complete Peer Feedback sheets.

DURING: Speeches (30–35 minutes)

Be mindful of time and try to keep the speeches moving along. Students should provide feedback when not presenting and you and the judges should complete rubrics.

AFTER: Student vote (5 minutes)

Have the students cast a ballot for who they consider the winner of the speech competition.
Student Handout: Project Soapbox Peer Feedback
